THE GLENDALE NEWS

DEVOTED TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF THE SAN FERNANDO VALLEY

VOL. VI. GLENDALE, LOS ANGELES COUNTY, CAL., FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 11, 1910. No. 29

Tropico and Glendale are practically one community joining Los Angeles City on the north; the former five and the latter six miles in a direct line from the Court House in Los Angeles. Glendale is an incorporated city of the sixth class with about 2700 population. Pacific Electric cars leave Sixth street depot half hourly. Eagle Rock cars leaving Twelfth and Broadway every half hour, connecting at Eagle Rock with car for Glendale. Rapidly increasing in population and importance. Schools, churches, fraternal societies, business establishments and all the accessories of an up-to-date suburban community.

LIVELY RUNAWAY.

Mr. Thresher of Sycamore Canyon came into town on Tuesday afternoon to make some purchases at the hardware store on Fourth street. As he left the store carrying a large pane of glass in the front of his open buggy the horse became panic-stricken at sight of the glass and dashed off, the lines and glass making a combination which the driver found impossible to manage. The horse ran up Fourth and when the turn was made up Glendale avenue Mr. Thresher was thrown out and fell heavily upon the street. Fortunately no bones were broken nor did he suffer much from the experience. Mr. Paul Ward, who saw the horse dashing along in front of his home on Second street, rushed out and caught the animal. The buggy, which was an old one, was slightly damaged.

NO! WE DON'T Make a Dirt in Your House

Our vacuum machine, mounted on a light wagon, is located as near to your house as possible, a hose run inside, our engine started, and then you watch the observation glass and it will surprise you as to what we do.

Carpets, Mattresses, Pillows, Rugs, Walls, Lounges, in fact everything inside the house yields its dust to our vacuum pumps which deposits the dirt outside.

No need to take up your carpets. We clean them right on the floor.

SUDDEN DEATH.

The many friends of Charles H. Shackford were greatly shocked at the news of his death which occurred on Saturday the 5th inst., at his home, 327 South Belmont street. Mr. Shackford had just returned from a visit to some of the stores on Fourth street and while talking to his wife regarding somo of his purchases, without warning fell dead at her feet. While not an old resident of Glendale, he was quite well known, and his death is much regretted.

By his genial, lovable manner, he made many friends; he was a good, kind husband, a Christian, veritably "a true son of God."

Mr. Shackford was in his 79th year, a native of Conway, New Hampshire, and is survived by a widow.

The funeral, which took place at Pulliam's undertaking parlors at 2 p. m. Monday, was conducted by local members of the Masonic order, of which he was a member. The body was cremated and the ashes sent East to be spread on a swiftly moving stream.

THE "D. D." BUNCH.

A hilarious aggregation of "Mortals" precipitated themselves on the hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. "Dom" Dominy at their handsome home on Seventh street, Friday evening. It seems that the precipitation was not entirely unexpected for the invaders were immediately provided with beautiful hand-painted faces from which they were to select partners for the play. The play followed fast and furious but at present it is impossible to designate the leading lady or even the leading man.

In the second act, a tasting contest, which was pulled off in the dining room, one Edward Lynch won by the edge of his teeth the handsome prize consisting of a one-half interest in one of Mrs. Dominy's inimitable handmade cakes. Just as Mr. Lynch was about to claim his prize a riot call from the neighborhood brought the city marshal on the scene and the bunch agreed to distribute themselves to their respective places of abode, but not until a Burchett street member had provided a meeting place outside the city limits for the next session.

MEMORIES OF ELIZABETH C. DUNN.

During her long life, our late beloved Friend, Elizabeth C. Dunn, had lived in several localities, and in all of them had endeared herself to a large circle, not of Friends only, but those of all denominations and all conditions. In the period of her husband's activity at Trenton, they had a seashore cottage at Beach Haven, and while there she would feel a special drawing to Tuckerton meeting, seven miles across the bay. This was before the time of motor boats, and it was necessary to depend upon wind and tide for successful transit. One who is now the senior captain amongst those having yachts at the Beach Haven dock delights to tell how "his faith in unseen things was strengthened" by an incident in the life of our dear Friend. The evening before, Philip Dunn had engaged him to take them to Tuckerton for meeting on First-day morning. At eight o'clock they reported at the boat landing, as arranged. The tide, to use the captain's phrase, was "dead ahead," and there was not "one smite of wind." With natural affability of manner, he told them he was very sorry indeed, but it would be impossible to get to Tuckerton that morning. Thereupon Elizabeth Dunn paused a moment, as if in unusual meditation, and then, looking up, said: "Captain, is thee willing to try?" Such an appeal was, of course, instantly effective. The Friends were helped to their seats in the boat, the sail was set, and then, with a pole, the boat was pushed away from the dock into the current of the channel. Immediately a breeze from the eastward (the most favorable possible direction) filled the sail, and with greater expediency than usual they were at the landing in Tuckerton, and quite beforehand with their appointment at meeting. In the afternoon, at the hour for their return the wind had changed in direction, and the homeward trip was made with most comfortable conditions. We could all agree with the captain that the good Master whom Elizabeth Dunn served did not prompt her to impossible tasks.

The naturally noble presence of our Friend was greatly enhanced in impressiveness by wearing the conventional Quaker garb. Her consistency in this respect was a part of a wholehearted conviction that the "testimonies" had a service in the world, and that it was her duty to uphold them. Speaking once of the home she loved so well with her brother in Camden, where she was the only Friend, she referred to her enjoyment of the calls of the wife of the Episcopalian rector. She observed of her that she was a charming woman. After she had been coming for some time, she said to her one day: "My dear, I think thou art sweet enough to have a first name." "Somehow," Elizabeth Dunn continued, "we always were the best of friends after that." It was of this same household that she laughingly said: "We are a very diverse company, but manage to live in great harmony. My brother is a steadfast Episcopalian, my niece an ardent Baptist, the maid that serves us a devout Catholic, and I try to be a Friend." So with great strength of character there was great adaptability, and a fine sense that divine love enlarges our sympathies and makes us at peace with all men. In Whittier's words:

"The dear Lord's best interpreters
Are humble human souls;
The Gospel of a life like hers
Is more than books and scrolls.

"From scheme and creed the light goes out,
The saintly fact survives,
The blessed Master none can doubt
Revealed in holy lives."

(The above tribute we find in the Philadelphia "Friend" of recent date. The subject of it was the aunt of Mrs. J. C. Thomas, of Highland Park, Miss R. M. Sherer and Mr. J. C. Sherer, of Glendale.)

Capt. J. M. Wells returned Thursday last from a visit of a fortnight to Ventura and Santa Barbara.

TUESDAY AFTERNOON CLUB

The Philanthropic Section Makes an Appeal—Delegates to Attend Convention of Federated Clubs

The members and guests of the Tuesday Afternoon club were treated to one of the most delightful programs on Tuesday. Mrs. J. C. Sherer was the first speaker and gave a very interesting talk on the Azores. She showed a great many pieces of laces and basketry which the natives do by hand. Mrs. Daniel Campbell next told of her native home, Ireland. She had pictures of the late McKinley's ancestor's home, only a few miles from her birthplace. She told of the way eldest sons inherit lands and leases to land until there is none for poor or even younger members of a family to buy, so they come to America. Mrs. Edgar Pack told of their trip to England and the Isle of Wright last year. One very interesting sight was 150 battleships in a body which is one-fifth of England's navy.

Mrs. Gridley, the president gave a very fine talk on Scotland and more especially about Burn's and Walter Scott's homes. Miss Anita Wells, who has just returned from Europe, gave us a splendid idea of the beauties and sights to be seen in Italy. She told of points of interest in Milan, Florence, Rome, Venice, Naples and several other cities.

Mrs. R. E. Chase told of Mexico and showed many curios made by the natives. She spoke more especially of the poorer classes as we have no way of knowing of their customs and homes. Mrs. S. Lawrence Ward, who spent nine years in Persia as missionary told many interesting things of the customs and people of that far-off country, she having traveled over a large portion of it. Mr. E. C. Frank had some beautiful paintings of different places in the old world, but owing to the lateness of the hour he was unable to explain them to members. It is to be hoped such another afternoon can be arranged for in the very near future when his splendid works can be shown.

The Tuesday Afternoon club will send as delegates to the district convention of Federated Clubs Miss Hickman and Mrs. Jessie Russell, and as alternates Mrs. Robt. Blackburn and Mrs. Robt. Morris. As the club numbers over one hundred members, it is entitled to have two delegates and two alternates, as well as the president, Mrs. M. H. Gridley. The chairman of each department is also to represent the different sections at the "Round Tables" to be held during the convention, which meets at the Friday Morning Club house in Los Angeles Nov. 17-18-19, at 10 a. m.

Mrs. Baurhyte, president of the district federation of clubs, will speak to the Tuesday Afternoon club on the 22nd of November on the benefit of the great federation of clubs.

Mrs. L. C. Rice, chairman of the philanthropic section of the Tuesday Afternoon Club, invites the members of the club to bring "diner boxes" for Thanksgiving dinners of the mothers of families who leave their children at the Day Nursery, while they work to help support them. Cans of fruit, glasses of jelly, cookies, vegetables, meat, or money will be acceptable. If these boxes are brought to Filger's Opera hall on Tuesday afternoon, November 22nd, Mrs. Rice will see that they reach their destination and gladden the hearts of these poor and worthy families and give them some Thanksgiving cheer.

IMPROVED SERVICE

Pacific Electric Puts On More Cars—Twenty-minute Service Established—"Flyers" Night and Morning

Beginning Thursday morning the Pacific Electric Company established the long looked-for twenty-minute service between Glendale and Los Angeles. Cars now leave both ends of the line on the even hour and every twenty minutes between. Three flyers, making only four stops, viz., Arden avenue, Fourth street, Lomita avenue and Tropico avenue. The crowd of strap-hangers, which has been increasing very rapidly of late, is rejoicing over the increased service, as is every one else who has occasion to patronize the line. With the steady influx of homeseekers coming into the valley there is every reason to anticipate that even a twenty-minute service will soon be inadequate, but for the present the new schedule will no doubt give general satisfaction and be appreciated by the traveling public.

WORTH-WHILE CLUB.

The regular monthly meeting of the Worth-While Club was held on November 1st at the home of Miss Belle Lyons. Plans to aid the Children's Home in Los Angeles were discussed and it was decided to donate to the Home, sheets, pillow-cases and a quilt, the members making the same. Also to give a Thanksgiving box of fruit to the institution. The Spanish Home in Los Angeles is to be looked after by the club, so with twenty members working along these philanthropic lines, it is proving that the name of the club is being carried out.

On December 16th fancy articles will be sold by the club.

GOOD ROADS

La Canada-Verdugo Canyon Road and Central Avenue Bids Taken Under Advisement

(Contributed)

The Highway Commission has opened bids on the Verdugo Road and Central avenue improvements and the contract will no doubt be let in a few days. The lowest bid on the former is that of W. K. Peaseley, for $13,833.23. On Central avenue the bids are complicated so that the figure cannot yet be given; there are three bidders.

The promoters of the consolidation of Glendale, West Glendale, Tropico and adjacent territory have been waiting for the letting of these contracts, which assures the carrying out of the original plan of the Highway Commission in regard to them, before taking steps to bring the consolidation matter to an issue. If the contracts are let before Monday evening next it is probable that the petition to the city trustees for the calling of an election will be presented at their meeting that evening and action by the board will no doubt follow promptly. The law requires that the petition shall be signed by one-fifth of the voters within the city limits at the last election. The total registration being 579. The calling of the election, both within the city and in the territory outside that it is proposed to annex, is under control of the city trustees, the supervisors having no authority in the premises. The charter committee, of which Mr. F. L. Muehlman is chairman, is having weekly meetings, examining the charters of various municipalities, so that in the event of consolidation they may have a report to submit to the people on the question of a Freeholders' Charter, under which many of the most progressive cities of the Coast are operating.

MONTHLY BULLETIN.

The following bulletin is based on special reports by reliable authorities from various counties, covering almost every section of the state:

Crops generally have been good, and farmers and fruit growers are well satisfied with the season's results. Citrus fruit shipments for 1909-1910 are about over, and the movement of the new crop has already begun, being some two weeks earlier than usual.

Deciduous fruit shipments are somewhat less than at the same date last year, but apples and grapes will keep the total up to the mark.

Sugar beets are giving good returns, both as to yield and saccharine content.

The bean crop has come well up to expectations, and in some places is above the record.

The demand for beef, mutton and pork exceeds the supply.

Dairy and poultry industries are thriving, yet the production is still far short of the consumption.

The cotton crop of Imperial is yielding beyond expectation, many tracts making one and a half and two bales to the acre. The fiber is excellent, and is commanding top price. Six gins are actively at work.

Oil and mining developments continue reasonably active.

The Noble Electric Steel Company is preparing to install five new furnaces at Heroult.

In every quarter public and private construction is going actively on and new enterprises are being inaugurated.

The influx of homeseekers is large and increasing, and many new colonization enterprises are being inaugurated. The tourist travel is also very large, taxing the capacity of the transportation companies.

As an indication of general conditions, it may be stated that bank clearings reported to the California Development Board from seven of the clearing house cities of the state show an increase for October of 21 per cent over October, 1909.

Eight hundred and ninety-three new registrations of motor vehicles were made with the secretary of state during the month of September.

SOMERS-GLASSELL.

Miss Andrietta Glassell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Glassel of San Fernando road, Tropico, was married Tuesday evening last at the home of her parents to Mr. Milton Clark Somers of Los Angeles. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Hugh K. Walker of Immanuel Presbyterian church, music being furnished by harp and violin. The young lady is a graduate of Marlborough school, accomplished and popular. Mr. Somers is manager of the Glassell estate. The young couple will reside at 1984 West Twenty-third street, Los Angeles.

DEATH OF C. W. MAXSON.

Chester W. Maxson, aged 56, died at his residence on Arden avenue last Tuesday. He had been a resident there but a few weeks and had been an invalid for a considerable time before coming to Glendale. The funeral was held from the Pulliam establishment Wednesday afternoon, interment at Forest Lawn.

Announcement

Ernest H. Owen has taken as a partner in his real estate, insurance and loan business, Mr. R. M. Brown, and desires to announce that any business may be entrusted to Mr. Brown or himself. Both their Glendale and Los Angeles office will be open during business hours.

CITY TRUSTEES

Library Question Settled for the Present—Majority Votes to Call Election, but the Necessary Two-thirds Lacking

The attendance of citizens was small, as compared with the number that crowded the lobby last week, but the room was comfortably filled. After the reading of the minutes, the regular order was suspended, and the way was opened for the debate on the library question. Mr. Wilmot Parcher presented a petition, signed by 199 petitioners, in opposition to the petition presented last Monday evening, which bore 160 signatures. The petition presented stated that there is now a movement looking toward the annexation of additional territory to Glendale, and requested that, in consequence of that fact, action in regard to a library be deferred. No further addresses were made at this time, and the report of the city attorney, preparing an ordinance calling for an election for the selection of a library site, was taken up. The clerk read the resolution, which was referred to the committee of the whole to be taken up later. Another petition, an addenda to the one presented last week, containing the names of sixteen voters and the Glendale Sanitarium, was read—this making a total of 176 signatures to the petition requesting the call of an election. The board then adjourned, and in committee of the whole the resolution prepared for the calling of an election was taken up. The time was devoted to fixing up the resolution, and upon roll call it was favored by a vote of three to two, Messrs. Lane and Coker voting in the negative. Upon the call for second reading, Mr. Lane spoke, calling attention to the fact that the petition protesting against calling an election was signed by a sufficient number of voters to assure the defeat of the measure if put to vote. Mr. Watson stated his position, saying that he believed the matter should be settled by vote, and not by petition. Upon call of roll for second reading, Messrs. Anderson, Watson and White voted aye; Coker and Anderson voted no. There not being the necessary two-thirds in favor of the proposition, it was declared lost. At this point the audience adjourned. The regular order of business was taken up. The usual number of demands were passed. Health officer reported one case of diphtheria and one of scarlet fever, also having investigated one place where about a dozen cows are kept on two adjoining city lots, and recommended that an ordinance be passed covering such cases. The city attorney was instructed to draw up an amendment to the present ordinance which will prohibit the keeping of more than one cow on an ordinary city lot. The building inspector reported thirty-nine building permits issued for the month of October, amounting to over $43,000. The lighting department reported as follows:

Receipts.

Operating fund—Cash on hand October 1	$ 378.04
For commercial light and power	948.66
Miscellaneous	6.90
Total	$1,333.60

Expenditures.

Power	$ 455.22
Superintendence and labor (two months' salaries)	505.50
Supplies, etc	122.41
Total	$1,083.13

Balance on hand, $250.47.

The tax collector reported a total of $3,113.76 collected to date.

The matter of the temporary crossings being put in on Brand boulevard by the Pacific Electric was discussed at some length. It was developed that the plan of the railroad people does not seem to contemplate any crossing at Maple avenue.

Special commendation should be accorded the proprietors of the moving picture show for their latest development, amateur night, which is held every Friday evening for the purpose of furthering self-possession musical ability among the children.

Last Friday evening special features provided by Hugh and Dean Bryant, who sang slumber song, and little Helen MacMullen, who gave "Call Me Up Some Rainy Afternoon." Both numbers were excellent and surprisingly well rendered considering the extreme youth of the participants. Miss Helen, having had much more experience than Hugh and Dean, was accorded the head prize, the twins following as close seconds.

Mr. H. P. Coker acted as judge.

GLENDALE, CAL., NOVEMBER 11, 1910

The population of Los Angeles is reported to have increased 200 per cent in a decade, and still it is "going some."

It is agreeable pastime in these ante-election days to take up the files of the papers a week old and read some of the pre-election prophecies.

Mr. Lloyd George, Chancellor of the Exchequer of Great Britain, declares that the tax on liquor has reduced its consumption by ten million gallons, with a consequent decrease in crime.

Next week we expect to issue an extra edition of fifteen hundred copies of the NEWS for free distribution around the valley. Advertisers are advised to get their orders for space in early. See rates at top of editorial column.

South Pasadena citizens to the number of 900 have petitioned the city trustees to pass an ordinance prohibiting the delivery of intoxicating liquors within the city limits. The liquor dealers claim that they are protected by the State law, but the protestants doubt the truth of this statement and the matter is likely to come to an issue in court.

The passing of the Pacific Electric Company into the hands of the Southern Pacific (Harriman interests) is a matter of great importance to Los Angeles suburbanites. But what the result will be, it is impossible to foretell.

It is doubtful if any one will ever control the roads who will take greater pride in them than has their originator, Mr. H. E. Huntington, who has given to Southern California the finest electric railway system in the world.

Captain J. D. Fredericks will, if he lives, fill the position of district attorney for Los Angeles for four years more and we sincerely congratulate the people of the county upon the fact. The election of Mr. Woolwine to this responsible position would have been a very risky experiment. His campaign has shown him to be possessed of unusual ability as a formulator of unsupported charges and a denunciatory orator of high courage bordering on recklessness. These are not qualities desirable in a prosecuting attorney who should be endowed with a judicial temperament above all things else save the ordinary virtues of common honesty.

An incident that occurred in Panama recently illustrates the difference in spirit and method of the Taft administration and that of the one immediately preceding. There has been a presidential campaign going on in the little republic recently. One of the aspirants for the presidency is a gentleman named Lewis, who is acceptable to the American interests in the Canal Zone. In a recent interview published in a Panama paper, Mr. Marsh, the American Minister, was reported as serving solemn notice upon the Panamanians that if Mr. Lewis was not elected, the United States might be forced to take measures for the annexation of Panama. As soon as this report reached Washington the Minister was instructed to promptly "repudiate" without delay the menace imputed to him" in the reported interview; which was of course done. It would not be fair nor true to say that President Roosevelt would not have taken similar action under similar circumstances, but there are logical reasons for the belief that if the American interests in Panama had seemed to require that Senor Lewis be elected president of that republic, the representative of the United States there would not have been reproved for assisting in that consummation.

BUY AT HOME.

Every now and then some new enterprise starts up in Glendale, a fact which, as much as anything else, gives evidence of our increasing growth and importance. In this connection it is proper to remind our people that as it is a universal desire in the community that every proper business venture prosper, it devolves upon the people of the community to make this possible. This can be done by giving to local concerns all possible patronage. This should be done even at the cost of some effort and possibly at some slight advance in price, although in most instances this is not required. A loyal support of home concerns will have the result of making Glendale a prosperous business center and bring to our city all that may be desirable in the way of business concerns.

ELECTION RESULTS.

Although the count is incomplete as we go to press, the general result seems to be settled beyond doubt. In the eastern and middle west states the Democrats have scored a victory which will revive their hopes and give to the party a good fighting chance for the presidential campaign two years hence. They will be in control of the coming congress and one of the interesting results of this will be the retirement of Chairman Cannon by his traditional political enemies and not by his own party as was the fond hope of the insurgents. The result in New York state will generally be interpreted as a rebuke to Roosevelt and there will be many of his own party who will not regret that this has been administered. The injection of his personality into the New York contest was a political mistake and will undoubtedly take from him much of his prestige as a politician and an infallible leader. The fact that such a small percentage of the Republican vote was cast in the Empire state may be attributed to the sulking of the "Old Guard," but it was bad politics to force them into sulkiness. Indeed the losses suffered by the Republicans in those states where insurgency is the strongest are attributable to this same cause more than to any question of the tariff or other national policy. The insurgents have carried on their campaign generally in a manner which had a tendency to alienate a large portion of their party and the result to some degree was easily foreseen. That the Republican ticket in California has been elected is due more to the natural preponderance of Republicans in the state and to the fact that its candidate for governor managed to capture a large portion of the labor vote, than to the wisdom of the leaders. Fortunately for the country as we believe, the Democrats will control only the lower branch of congress and as a consequence no radical measures are likely to be put upon the statute books, so that the effect upon business will be inappreciable. The Republicans should be able in the next two years to harmonize their differences and turn defeat into victory. We predict that at that time, should nothing unusual and unforeseen occur, William Howard Taft will have behind him a party purged of the fever of hysteria and devoted in the true spirit of reform to the betterment of conditions along practical lines as far as legislation can attain that object.

HIGH PRICES AND WASTE.

Mr. John R. Newberry, the well-known Los Angeles merchant, recently returned home from a year's absence in Europe. While he was away he made a study of the cause of prevailing high prices and comparisons between prices in the United States and certain European countries. The most unsatisfactory condition of affairs from an economic point of view he found to exist in England, while in France it was not much better. He found Germany the most interesting of the countries he visited and noticed the marked difference between conditions in that country and in the United States, this country suffering greatly by contrast.

In Germany successful efforts have been made to eliminate waste, to get the most out of the soil and to bring the producer and consumer as nearly together as possible. This has resulted to a considerable degree in the elimination of the middle man; the result being that in Germany it only costs about twenty-six cents to get a dollar's worth of produce from the producer to the consumer, while in the United States it requires over sixty per cent. There is not much doubt but that Mr. Newberry has discovered the principal cause of prevailing high prices in the United States. They are the logical result of our improvident methods in business and in private life. Once it was thought that one middleman, the retailer, was a sufficient intermediary between producer and consumer, but we have long gone beyond that and in some instances an article passes through a half dozen hands before the consumer secures it. The housekeeper does not as in times not long past, go to the store or the market in the early morning with her empty market basket and bring it home full; on the contrary, the solicitor calls for her order, the delivery wagon brings it to her door from the retailer who bought it from the wholesaler who purchased it from the jobber who bought it from the commission merchant who handled it for the farmer who dug it out of the ground if it happened to be potatoes.

And the ultimate consumer pays the bill, for all of these intermediaries must receive compensation for their efforts!

As a general rule those who use luxuries must pay for them and the American people are merely paying the price for that which an insatiate demand requires, while the appetite increases with that it feeds upon!

A CARNEGIE LIBRARY.

The community is to be congratulated upon the settlement of the library question for the present. That it was not settled in accordance with the wishes of many of our citizens goes without saying, and yet the action of the trustees was eminently fair. The presentation of the two petitions, showing no preponderance, but rather a fair division of sentiment on the subject, made it easy for the members of that body to decide the matter according to their personal convictions, and no one should be disposed to question their motives or feel aggrieved. Had the second petition not been presented, it would have been proper for the trustees to yield to the desire of such a large number of voters as were represented on the first, and issued the call for an election. But when a larger petition was presented, to offset that, the wisdom of calling an election for a bond issue requiring the approval of two-thirds of the voters certainly appeared doubtful. Now that the matter is shelved for the present, a number of features connected with the question of a library can be discussed without fear of some excited citizen calling out the fire department. One thing not considered is the fact that a number of the citizens of Glendale do not favor a Carnegie library at all. They believe that the city should own and control such an institution, untrammeled by any restrictions whatever. Voters holding this view will, of course, oppose the establishment of such a library, wherever it is proposed to locate it. Another matter that has not been made quite plain is the matter of the exact requirements of Mr. Carnegie. There seems to be some doubt, for instance, as to whether he insists or expects that the building shall be devoted to library purposes only. In reply to this, it is not sufficient to point to the fact that Long Beach, or some other city, actually does use the library building for other than library purposes. This, as a matter of fact, might be done for years, and, the case not being called to the attention of the donor, would prove nothing. The important question for local consideration is whether Glendale, having secured a Carnegie library building, would be able to use a portion of it for a council chamber, or a chamber of commerce exhibit, or similar purpose, without being in danger of getting into a controversy with the representatives of the donor upon the complaint of some busybody who might bring the facts to their notice? Another thing that requires still further elucidation is the question as to whether, when a site is contributed, there is a reasonable certainty about securing the donation. The city of Alhambra voted bonds, we are informed, several months ago to purchase a library site, and Mr. Carnegie's representatives positively refused to give the money, the reason given being the fact that there was another Carnegie library at South Pasadena, three miles distant. That objection could not be raised in the case of Glendale, but is there any assurance that no other point would be raised to hang an objection upon?

We believe that, now that the matter is not quite such a "burning" issue as it was a few days ago, it can be discussed more reasonably and more profitably than heretofore, and that in the end it will be settled right.

CONSOLIDATION OF CITY AND COUNTY, WHEN?

As the anxiety of Mayor Alexander and his enthusiastic supporters in the campaign for a Greater Los Angeles, appears to grow, it may not be amiss for the outside towns which they wish to absorb, to begin to give the matter serious attention. As a rule these outside towns do not show a corresponding spirit of enthusiasm, which is not to be wondered at. Notwithstanding the troubles of the smaller cities; they at least have the privilege of managing their own affairs, and this has been productive of very satisfactory results, in the past and promises equally well for the future. The consolidation of city and county governments is an object which appeals to every one as something desirable under an arrangement mutually satisfactory. But this consolidation, by which one superfluous set of officers will be eliminated and which is dictated by elementary ideas of economy in administration, does not seem to be the object which inspires the Los Angeles promoters of the idea. They do not want this limited union, they desire on the contrary a complete amalgamation of Los Angeles and the nearby cities within the county. The present city of Los Angeles is now taxed to its legal limit. No more indebtedness can be incurred under present laws until some of the existing indebtedness is paid off. It is obviously, therefore, to the advantage of that city to acquire as much additional territory as is possible in order that additional bond issues may be the sooner provided for. The present indebtedness of the city amounts to about one hundred dollars per capita. Another object to be gained by Los Angeles is the securing of a market for the Owens river water, of which there will be a large surplus over the requirements of the city. While it has not, we believe, been stated with any absolute authority that the water cannot be disposed of outside the city, there is a persistent effort being made to convey this impression. We believe that this idea is not based upon anything in the way of law or fact. While it is probably true that the city cannot if it would, dispose of its right and title to the water by conveying it to any community in fee simple, it is more than probable that the water can be disposed of under lease for a term of years and it is probable that this discovery will yet be made by the legal advisers of the city, when it is found that outside communities are unwilling to be absorbed for the sake of a chance to irrigate. As far as Los Angeles city is concerned, that municipality may at any time under existing laws combine with the county government in the work of assessing property and collecting taxes. But it evidently does not wish to do this, for even a "reform" administration is loth to give up its hold on any of the offices! Indeed if the city and county government should combine for this purpose now it is doubtful whether the number of employes would be noticeably less. There are many things to be arranged before it is possible to bring about this consolidation and a number of difficulties to be removed before it can be consummated. It does not seem to be contemplated to take in the entire county in this union of city and county government, and it has not yet been made clear as to how the city is to get rid of the "undesirable" portions of the county, Antelope valley for instance (undesirable because remote). Having a certain population and the votes to carry the proposition, an outlying portion of the county can detach itself from the main portion, but there seems to be no legal means by which the reverse process can be worked; how is Los Angeles to get rid of Antelope valley? It does not seem to be a matter within the province of legislative action; the organic law of the state is involved. Altogether there seem to be many obstacles in the way of the union of the city and county of Los Angeles, obstacles which it does not seem possible to remove for three or four years yet and that presupposes that some real statesmanlike work be done by those in authority.

Editor GLENDALE NEWS.

Dear Sir: Through the columns of your paper I wish to announce to my many friends and the citizens of Glendale, Tropico and surrounding valley that I am now one of their number and hereafter I shall be very pleased ot take part in the upbuilding and boosting for the betterment of our most beautiful suburban city and adjacent valley. Coming to Southern California in the early spring of this year I at once began looking for a place where I could enjoy the advantages of life which I already understood goes with living in this part of our great state. After looking over all of the desirable suburban towns adjacent to Los Angeles I selected Glendale as the place which seemed to me to surpass all others, reasons for which I here take the privilege to state: chief among them in my opinion is the climate. Being from the North I wished to avoid any possibility of locating where the changes in atmospheric conditions were not noticeable. In the San Fernando valley I found the ideal, the cold of the North blended with the semi-tropical climate for which Southern California is noted throughout the world, gives an almost perfect condition which I fully appreciate. Other of the chief attractions are: the schools, among which I consider the high school a model; the splendidly paved streets; the water supply and to the persons who do not care to have saloons on every corner dealing out ruin and desolation to many otherwise happy families Glendale is a city to be proud of. In selecting Glendale I compared all of the above mentioned points with other cities and found almost without exception that Glendale was the leader of all.

I have demonstrated my belief that this valley is coming into its own very rapidly by purchasing a small tract in the eastern part of the city as recently exclusively reported in the NEWS. This land was bought for investment and I believe that it will shortly prove a very profitable one. Furthermore, in the future I shall continue to show my apreciation of the wonderful opportunities in this valley by purchasing such pieces of property which in the course of business prove to be of good value, for I know that the upbuilding and improvement is just in its infancy.

The many substantial business houses of the city are ample proof that the proprietors thereof have unbounded faith in the future prosperity of the city and adjacent valley. Let us reward them by patronizing them, which is the only way to make a city grow as it should.

Judging from what I know I believe that the government of Glendale is in the hands of capable, efficient and trustworthy men. So let us keep it.

I would like to say a few words here about the car service. I would suggest that we make an effort to secure service every twenty minutes during the hours of heavy travel in morning and evening. This would be a boon to persons who now have to leave on the 7:00 a. m. car so as to be at work at 8:00. I would like to hear from others on this subject.

Thanking you in advance for such space as you may grant me I beg to remain

Respectfully yours,

P. A. C. MOORE.

Fooled the Critics.

"Beerbohm Tree," said a Philadelphia critic, "at the beginning of his career undertook the part of the blind Colonel Challice in 'Alone.' Tree was a very nervous man in those days. He was always forgetting his lines. But as the blind colonel he seemed destined to be particularly nervous, and therefore he arranged with the prompter that on the first night, whenever he forgot a speech, he should snap his fingers as a signal for help.

"The first night came, and Tree forgot his lines continually. His fingers snapped all through the show like an unending package of firecrackers. He thought his career was doomed, but the next morning all the critics said of him unanimously:

"'Mr. Tree's artistic study of the blind Colonel Challice was a revelation. Never before have the habits and thoughts of the blind been so carefully analyzed and so faithfully portrayed. The entire study was perfect, even down to the nervous twitching of the fingers and the anxious listening, as though loss of sight made hearing all the more dear.'"

No Wonder He Was Disgusted.

It was on the Peary north pole expedition that an Eskimo came into possession of a piece of wire. Never having seen wire before, he asked Professor D. B. McMillan what it was for.

"White men string it on poles struck into the ground, and by talking into an instrument at one end the voice can be heard on the other," he was told by Professor McMillan. The next morning somebody called to Peary and the other members of the expedition to come out and watch the Eskimo. He was sticking some forked poles into the ground and hanging his piece of wire on top of them. He next held one end of the wire to his mouth and talked to it at the top of his voice. Then he hurried to the other end and held the wire to his ear, expecting to hear his own words repeated. When he failed to hear any sound he looked at his white friends in disgust.—Chicago Tribune.

Snails Are Queer Creatures.

The snail is found everywhere, over 8,000 species being known. Some of the large tropical snails, as bulimas, form nests of leaves, their eggs being as large as a pigeon's. The snail is extremely skillful in mending its shell, and some curious experiments may be made with them. Thus I have seen a helix of a yellow species attached to another shell of a reddish hue by cutting off the top whirl of the latter, when the snail will proceed to weld the two shells together and occupy both, using the addition as a door and possibly wondering at this sudden extension of its house. In the winter some of the snails hibernate or lie dormant until warm weather. A snail of the Philippine Islands has a faculty of throwing off its tail when seized. This is also true of a West Indian variety, stenophus.—London Telegraph.

A Brougham Pun.

John Brougham was celebrated for his ready wit, and a story is told of him and Pat Hearne, who was the Canfield of his day. Hearne was a big man and addicted to flashy waistcoats. In one of his parts Brougham made up to resemble Hearne and wore a particularly loud and gaudy waistcoat. Hearne's friends persuaded him to go to see the play, anticipating considerable amusement at his expense. As they were coming out of the theater he was asked what he thought of Brougham's performance. "Not a bit like me. Why, I wouldn't own such a waistcoat." Brougham, hearing this, said, "I see; he wouldn't acknowledge the Pat Hearne-ity (paternity)." —"Recollections of Lester Wallack."

Dead as a Doornail.

The phrase "dead as a doornail" originated in this way. In early days, when door knockers were common, the plate upon which the knocker struck was sometimes called a nail. In the course of years it was struck so often that all life was supposed to be knocked out of it; therefore when it became necessary to refer to anything hopelessly lifeless it was merely an emphatic expression to say that it was "as dead as a doornail."—Home Notes.

Headed For the White House.

The small newsboy was leaning up against the wall, sobbing bitterly.

"Cheer up, my little man," said a passerby. "What's the use of worrying? You may be president some day."

"B-b-say," sobbed the little fellow, "it a-sure do l-look as if I wus h-headed dat way; somebody's allers a-roastin' me!"—Chicago News.

He Wasn't It.

"My dear Miss Billmore," sadly wrote young Hankinson, "I return herewith your kind note in which you accept my offer of marriage. You will observe that it begins 'Dear George.' I do not know who George is, but my name, as you know, is William."—Chicago Tribune.

Witty.

The following epigram was written on Dr. Isaac Letsom, a once well known English physician:

When folks are sick and send for me
I purges, bleeds and sweats 'em.
If after that they choose to die
What's that to me? I Letsom.

"BACK TO THE FARM"

XII.—Rural Education—Secondary Schools.

By C. V. GREGORY.

[Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

IN the past the 97 per cent of the rural boys and girls who never attended college have scarcely received their share of attention. The college has been developing leaders, but the rank and file have been neglected. Only recently has the need of industrial education for the great mass of the people been recognized.

Now that the necessity is seen steps are being taken to meet it. It was thought at first that the country boy could obtain all the education he needed in a city high school. That idea is fast being outgrown. The city high school was not created to meet the needs of the country boy, and it contains little that appeals to him. High school principals have too long arranged their courses of study for the 3 per cent of their pupils who will go to college, ignoring the needs of the other 97 per cent.

Hard as this system was on the boy in town, it was harder still on the country boy. There was nothing in the high school course that was connected even remotely with his life on the farm. Most of his time was given to mathematics, Latin, German, etc., with perhaps a little music and art thrown in. The mathematics were a help in developing his mind and teaching him to think. The Latin and German were of little value except to the 3 per cent who expected to enter college. The music probably was given by a teacher who couldn't sing half so well as the meadow larks at home and the art by one who couldn't draw a cow or a pig to save his life.

The worst part of the high school from the farm boy's standpoint was the attitude toward work in general and farm work in particular. The boys and girls were encouraged to prepare for college in order that they might get through life more easily, though perhaps they were not told so in so many words. The teachers talked of the farm as a good place to come from perhaps, but carried the idea that farming was not a worthy calling for a boy with ambition. Everything he heard or learned pointed away from the farm and toward the city. Not only was the farm boy denied any knowledge of the farm, but he was taught to see the bright side of every other calling and the dark side of his own. It was little wonder that he left the farm at the end of his high school course.

The high schools are coming to pay vastly more respect to the 97 per cent of their pupils. They are realising the truth of the statement that the education which increased a boy's wants without increasing his earning capacity is a failure. Courses in carpentry, shop work and mechanics have been put in. The whole attitude of the high school is changing, and more attention is being paid to preparing students for life than to preparing them for college. The students are being taught that it is an honor to work with their hands. The girls are being taught domestic science and home economics. In short, the high school has seen its opportunity and is grasping it.

In all this development the country boy has been left out. The atmosphere of the high school is still that of the city. A few have attempted to teach agriculture, and some have succeeded. It has become plain, however, that a school located on a block of land in the heart of a city cannot hope to teach agriculture with the greatest degree of success. With that realization has come the secondary agricultural school. Such schools are all too few as yet, but their numbers are increasing rapidly as the demand for them grows. Some are supported by the counties, some by the states and some privately. Some of the denominational and preparatory schools have been very successful in teaching agriculture. Georgia has eleven district agricultural schools that are doing a great work in educating the rank and file of the future farmers of the state. Minnesota and Nebraska have schools of agriculture in connection with their agricultural colleges. These are doing good work, but they are reaching only a small proportion of the farm boys and girls. One such school to a state is not enough.

The ideal secondary school is located away from the heart of the city. It has a liberal piece of land in connection with it. To be successful it must be surrounded by enough of a farm to give it a rural flavor. As a rule these secondary schools are doing their work well. They have ruthlessly cut out the classics and the dead languages. They have substituted studies that help to fit the boys and girls for life on the farm. A large share of the study of books is done away with and the study of living things substituted. The schools are well equipped with laboratories. The student works with corn, scoring, placing and testing. Judging corn is as fascinating a game as ever a boy engaged in. Even more interesting is the stock judging.

Few of the schools can afford to keep a complete line of live stock, but neighboring farmers are always ready to supply the deficiency. Then there are the machinery laboratories, where the boys learn some of the simpler principles of mechanics as applied to farm machinery. It puts a boy on his mettle to be turned loose on a pile of castings and told to put them together to form a binder. The intricacies of a gasoline engine keep him working after hours. The study of the growth of plants takes the place of the study of classified botany. The boy learns the names of the different weeds and how to tell their seeds apart. He learns their habits and the best ways of combating them. He makes a collection of insects and learns which ones are harmful and which innocent.

He is dealing with life, the kind of life that he has known ever since he was old enough to know anything. At last he is learning the answers to that big "why" that has bothered him ever since he could walk. He has found the education that is suited to his needs and his inclinations. It is an education in the ways of nature rather than in the ways of man. It is an education that is fitting him to live best the life that he knows most about.

He may not care much about college. His mind may falter at geometrical propositions and quadratic equations. But he can understand the proposition of soil fertility and crop rotation. He can work out the equation of profit and loss in raising calves. The greatest mission of any form of education is to teach people how to live. Not only must it teach them how to live well, but it will be successful directly in proportion to the number it reaches. The professional colleges have had to encompass themselves with severe restrictions in order that their professions might not become overcrowded. With agricultural education there is no such fear.

The danger is not in getting too much. The problem is to get enough. Secondary agricultural education has been phenomenally successful because it teaches people the things they want to know. They do not take such education on the general theory that it is good for them. They can see for themselves that it is good. They can see it in the increased corn yields grown by the boys who have been graduated from such a school to the farm. They can see it from the improved stock that takes the place of the bony specimens with which he once would have been satisfied. They can see it in the pride with which he keeps up his fences and yards.

The girl is given almost as large a place in the secondary school as the boy. She is taught the art and the science of homemaking. She gets a truer and saner view of life than would be possible in a city school. She has a greater sense of its responsibilities and a fuller appreciation of its pleasures.

While the first aim of the secondary agricultural school is to teach the boy to wring increased profits from the soil and the girl to use these profits in building up a better home, its function does not end there. The cultural side of the student's education is not neglected. He is given something of English, for an understanding of his native tongue and an ability to use it well are essential to a farmer who would be considered educated. He is given something of history, for no study can so broaden and deepen the springs of human thought as history. He is given public speaking and learns to talk well. Dame Fortune holds many good things in reserve for the man who can talk.

"KEEPING MONEY AT HOME."

To Be Consistent, Those Who Preach This Plan Should Also Practice It.

People are not infrequently treated to lectures on the importance of patronizing "home industries." With much that is said on this subject we agree, but we go further and say that those who advocate this should also practice it. It would be well if the people of each state should give preference to articles manufactured in their own state. If this be done merchants must buy products of home factories. This would mean prosperity of home factories and larger markets at home for farm products, says Farm and Ranch.

When one is urged to "spend your money at home," it may be as well to ask the person giving advice if he practices what he advocates? If he does not, then he is patriotic "for revenue only" and has small claim to consideration.

If the products of each state were given preference, we should have factories near home and benefits which would come from that consideration.

We were told of a manufacturer of clothing in Lowell, Mass., who bought material for a large lot of clothing from a southern factory because he could get it for a less price. This is a reflection upon our people. There should have been no products of southern factories for sale at less prices in Lowell.

Again, we heard of one case in which products of a cannery were rejected by merchants of the home town and were shipped to a distant town for market. A merchant of the home town then bought a large bill of canned goods and when they arrived found them products of the home cannery.

To patronize home industries is best, but not best for consumers alone. It is as good for middlemen as for consumers and should be enforced against men who patriotically urge others to "keep your money at home."

Where do you buy your goods, Mr. Merchant?

A COMMUNITY INVESTMENT.

How Good Schools Draw Citizens and Help to Build Up Towns.

More than a year ago a Rochester (N. Y.) manufacturer was seated in his office when a telephone message came from the chamber of commerce asking him to convey to Pittsburg the city's invitation for the 1910 play congress. He at once replied that he was too busy to think of making the trip. A few moments after, while walking around his workshop, he noticed a new face. Upon inquiring he found that the workman had recently come up from the far south.

"How did you happen to come all this distance?" asked the manufacturer.

"Well," said the workman, "I thought of my three children. I wanted to give them all the advantages I could possibly afford. The schools in my small southern community were not as good as I wished. In some way I heard that the Rochester it means for the future of my children and young people. It meant a good deal of a sacrifice, for I left a foreman's job in Georgia to work at the bench here. But when I think of what it means for the future of my children the sacrifice is forgotten and I am glad I came."

It took scarcely a moment's reflection to lead the manufacturer back to his office, and his voice was soon traveling over the telephone wire to the chamber of commerce, saying that he would go to Pittsburg to try to secure the play congress for the benefit it would be for all Rochester's children. —Survey.

The Scrap Book

The Privilege of His Rank.

In the early days of the Philippine insurrection Captain M.'s company had been for some time garrisoning a small town in Mindanao, where the social life consisted mainly of evading the festive bolo knife wielded by the little brown brother. Therefore he seized upon the occasion of his birthday to vary the monotony by brewing a punch and invited his two lieutenants to assist in its consumption. At a late hour the party broke up, and after some maneuvering Captain M. piloted his junior subaltern to his room, where he found the first lieutenant peacefully sleeping on the floor beneath his bunk. Shaking him violently, he roused him at last and said:

"I GET LOWER ONE."

"Get up into your bed!"

The senior subaltern shook his head, looked very grave and answered indignantly:

"No, sir; no, sir. You let shecond l'tenant take upper berth. I'm a first l'tenant, and I get lower one." And he peacefully turned his face to the wall again.—Lippincott's.

To One Mourning.

Dear one, give way to grief, and yet
As sure as doth the violet
Smell sweeter wet with rain shall you
Arise enriched to dare and do
Through this black hour whose weight like lead
Bows you in anguish by the dead.
The very silence and the pall
May seem sheer kindness, after all.

So rest in that divine perhaps.
The pain that stabs, the doubt that saps
The spirit—why, they may be naught
But shadows of the shining thought
That is too splendid and too bright
For the endurance of our sight.
The otherwise o'er radiant spheres
Being tempered for us by our tears.
—Richard Burton.

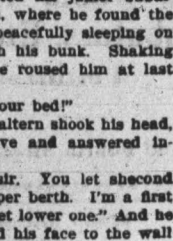
A ludicrous incident occurred when Carter, the lion king, as he was called, was exhibiting with Ducrow at London. A manager with whom Carter had made and broken an engagement issued a writ against him. The bailiffs came to the stage door and asked for Carter. "Show the gentlemen up," said Ducrow, and when they reached the stage there sat Carter composedly in the great cage, with an enormous lion on each side of him. "There's Mr. Carter, waiting for you, gentlemen," sad Ducrow. "Go in and take him. Carter, my boy, open the door." Carter proceeded to obey, at the same time eliciting by a private signal a tremendous roar from his companions. The bailiffs staggered back in terror, rolled over each other as they rushed downstairs and nearly fainted before they reached the street.



THERE SAT CARTER.

He Had a Cinch.

Dr. J. M. Buckley, the well known editor and divine, addressing a New York city Sunday school, told of meeting a ragged, hungry looking little girl in the street on a wintry day, and when he questioned her she recited a pitiful tale of a sick mother and younger brothers and sisters without food. After giving her a silver dollar the good doctor followed to see what she would do with the money.

"Now, children, what do you suppose was the first thing she bought with that dollar?" said Dr. Buckley. "Hands up."

Up went the hands, and one child after another ventured a guess, but none proved correct. Finally a little boy whose upraised hand alone remained was asked for his answer to the question.

"A basket," he sang out.

"Correct," said the doctor. "There's a boy who thinks. Now, son, come up here on the platform and tell us why you think it was a basket."

The boy hesitated, and Dr. Buckley took from his pocket a silver quarter. "I'll give you this," he said, "if you tell us what makes you think the little girl bought a basket first."

"Be-be-cause," stammered the youngster, at last moved by the sight of the money. "I was in Hoboken last Sunday and heard you tell the story there."—Harper's Magazine.

Valuable Indorsement.

When Tom Reed was speaker of congress he used to be a frequent visitor at the shop of James Guild, the old bookseller of Washington. One day Reed saw a print of Alexander Hamilton in the shop and asked the old gentleman:

"How much do you want for this?"

"Oh, about two and a half, I reckon," was the reply.

"I think I'll come in this afternoon and get it," said the speaker.

He came back that evening. "I guess I will take that print now," he said. "What did you say it was worth?"

"Ten dollars," said the bookseller.

"Why," said Mr. Reed, "you told me $2.50 this morning."

"Yes," said Mr. Guild, "but since then the print has had the artistic approval of the speaker of the house. It's gone up in consequence."

Text, "The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace."—Ex. xiv, 14.

Man's extremity is God's opportunity. A horde of Israelites were once fleeing from their taskmasters, terror stricken, stampeding, with men shouting, women praying, children crying, cattle lowing, everywhere indescribable fear and confusion, before them an impassable sea, on either side insurmountable cliffs, to their rear Pharaoh's army. They could hear the roar of hoofs and the dull thunder of charlot wheels. Any first year West Pointer would have pronounced such a position a huge tactical blunder. The end was clear—sword, rapine, massacred men, despoiled women, captive children. At the darkest moment there's a frantic appeal to Moses and God. The answer is Godlike in its strength and assurance, "The Lord shall fight for you, and ye shall hold your peace." Ever have your lawyer say: "Now, just leave this case with us. It is clear as daylight?" Ever have your physician say, "We'll have that child dancing on the sidewalk and hungry enough to eat nails in a week?" Then you went to your work with light heart. It wasn't many hours until the impossible happened. The sea was opened, and the Israelites passed over dry shod, while a cloud of protection dropped between them and their pursuers.

When You've Done Your Best.

Say, mother, ever get to the breaking point, the place where if you could just scream it would seem relief? Don't do it. The asylum's at the end of that road. There's something better. I know the pace is terrific, and yet you don't seem to get anything done. Washing baby faces, starting little feet off to school, laundering, mending, baking, scrubbing, sweeping and the thousand other duties that constitute a woman's day do not seem to count for much, but I declare unto you that you are doing more for the world that now is and that which is to come than many another woman who fancies she sways the rod of empire. But when your nerves are jangling, doing duty with a fearfully worn constitution, whooping cough in the house for six weeks, no rest, no sleep, other troubles you don't dare tell any one, when you cover the cage to keep the canary from singing, when you muffle the doorbell, when the wagon passing seems driving over your forehead—then you are at the Red sea. There's one of two ways then, either the madhouse or God. There's nothing but the old fashioned religion of Jesus Christ that will carry a woman through the trials of home life.

At the End of Your String.

Of course the fellows on the Merrimac were heroes; also the fellows carrying out the powder sacks among the sparks at Fortress Monroe. Death snapped right in their faces. But sometimes the easiest thing to do is to die. The big trick, then, is to have grit enough to live. Say, father, at the desk, at the bench, behind the counter, are you sometimes almost at the end of your string? Can't hardly make both ends meet? Fighting slander, financial losses, life plans slipping away, have to let a policy lapse and put a mortgage on the little home? Are there nights when you've had to take the cartridges from your revolver? "My, God, not that!" your better self said. Listen! There's some one who cares. You are now wedged in—the red sea ahead, the mountains on either side, the fiends of hell back of you. There's nothing left but God. Go right to him. I challenge you. Have you ever honestly tried? You see the thing is in his hand. Who sent the rain before Waterloo? If the atheist is right then hunt up your cartridges again. If Christ is right then you have a Father who can somehow make "all things work together for good to them that love the Lord."

Simply Let Go!

Don't pester your lawyer telling him of something you've read along the line of that case. Don't give your sick baby quiet doses of "something you've heard of" to aid your doctor. He knows quite a few things that you do not know. Trust him. God isn't in a tight place. You don't have to help him. Trust him. He guides the comets in their multimillion mile orbits. He balanced the leaf that fluttered just now. He has handled bigger tasks than yours. Trust him. Remember back home years ago, in the old pond, when the fellows were teaching you to float? Remember how you floundered, and flung, and grasped, and clutched, and strangled, with your mouth and nostrils full of the muddy pond water, even with the fellows keeping their hands under your sun bronzed body? Then Bill Jones—bless his freckled face, wonder where he is now—said: "Now, Jim, don't be so foolish. Just simply let go!" And before long you were floating like a lazy old porpoise in the sunshine. God sometimes leads a man into a wedge from which there seems no escape. Then when you are ready—not God—lo and behold, the way opens up wonderfully. Just seems a miracle happens. You'll never doubt again. Say, do you love that little curly head that you kissed good night awhile ago? Would you fight pretty hard for every hair in her little head? Well, "the Lord shall fight for you." Your love for that youngster is a rope of sand compared to the love of God for you.

What men want is not talent, it is purpose; not the powers to achieve, but the will to labor.—Bulwer-Lytton.

Fooling Her Husband.

There are more ways than one of "killing a cat" is a well known fact, but the newest of ways has been evolved from the fertile brain of a Germantown woman who is blessed with a stingy husband. This husband is generous enough in one sense of the word. His wife may have the best attire the stores afford charged to his account, but she may handle no money. Women, in this man's opinion, know nothing of the value of a dollar. On leaving for his office in the morning he kisses her goodby and thrusts a quarter's worth of trolley tickets into her hand.

Now milady goes shopping, buys a few necessities and a fifty dollar wrap for which she has no use whatever. Next day she returns the latter, receives a credit slip for $50 and betakes herself to the handkerchief counter, where she spends 50 cents, receiving $49.50 change. Placing some small change in her purse and stowing the roll of greenbacks in what she considers a safer receptacle, she leaves the shop feeling that she has made the best of a bad bargain.—Philadelphia Record.

A Bald Fact.

It is common to deplore the lack of humor in a person. Yet the very want of wit may save a certain amount of embarrassment, as was the case on a certain occasion with President Johnson. "He was one day," says a writer in Harper's Magazine, "visiting my mother, and a friend, Mrs. Knox, a widow, came in. She had known Mr. Johnson some years before, when he was a member of the legislature, but they had not met since then.

"After mutual recognition Mr. Johnsaid: 'How is Mr. Knox? I have not seen him lately.'

"'He has been dead six years,' said Mrs. Knox.

"'I thought I hadn't seen him on the street,' said Mr. Johnson.

"When Mrs. Knox left my mother said, laughing, 'That was a funny mistake of yours about Mr. Knox.'

"'What mistake did I make?' said Johnson. 'I said I hadn't seen him on the street, and I hadn't.'"

Distinction, if No Difference.

"Why do you want to marry my daughter?"

"I'm no object of charity; I wouldn't accept your money in any other way."—New York Press.

Superfluous.

Rollingstone Nomoss—Wot does "superfluous" mean? Tatterdon Torn—A bath robe an' a cake of soap.—Philadelphia Record.

Cheeky.

"Does Winks take any magazines?"

"All he can get. I don't dare to leave one lying around."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

NOW, NOT AFTERWARDS.

I suppose when I'm dead that people will come
And say, while in sorrow they bow,
"There was something about her I rather liked,"
But I wish they would tell me so now.

Perhaps they will talk of my eyes, of my hair;
The neighbors may even allow
My expression was sweet and I smiled when I spoke,
But I wish they would tell me so now.

They will say: "She always was happy and bright,
And don't you remember, dear, how
She ever was ready a kind word to give?"
But I wish they would tell me so now.

And those who were nearest and dearest to me
In anguish of heart will bow:
"My God, how I loved her! I loved her, oh, God!"
But I wish they would tell me so now.

—Nanno Woods, in Los Angeles Express.

A CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the kind friends and neighbors for their sympathy and loving attention in the dark hour of my bereavement.

REAL ESTATE AND BUILDING.

H. W. Walker, 1102 West Fourth street, reports the following sales this week: Lot on Adams street, between Third and Fourth, from Milton Metzler, Los Angeles, to a local buyer. Three lots on Second street east of Verdugo road, from Edward Ross to Jonas I. Bowers. Price reported $1600.

Saturday evening marked the grand opening of the new Casa Verdugo at the home of Mrs. C. A. Sowl. Aside from the large number of Los Angeles patrons the various neighbors and friends of Mrs. Sowl held dinner parties in the spacious dining rooms in honor of the occasion. Among others were Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Menzo Williams, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Brand, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Girard with Mr. and Mrs. Holland and Mr. and Mrs. J. Wilson.

One room which attracted particular attention was the Indian room, charmingly adapted to the use of card parties.

It is the intention of the residents of North Glendale to convert Casa Verdugo into the principal social center of the locality.

If you cannot call at the office please call Sunset 501 or Home 684.

Kirkby on Seventh street near Brand, where they will probably make their home. They came here from Seattle.

The enterprising real estate firm Tupper & Co., have opened a branch office on Fourth street near Brand boulevard in the building occupied by the "Craftsman." It is the intention of the firm to deal impartial with all sections of the valley and in their judgment a second office is required to enable them to do this.

Mrs. E. M. Huckins, aunt of Mr. James Farrell of East Fourth street, who is visiting in Los Angeles, was the guest of honor Saturday at a daintily appointed luncheon at the home of Mrs. General Chaffee, 987 Magnolia avenue. Covers were laid for eight. Other guests were Mrs. Mrs. Henry Alberts, Mrs. T. E. Trew, Mrs. J. Swaine, Mrs. Charles D. Viele, Mrs. Huston and Mrs. Eli P. Clark.

The Variety Store is hereafter to be known as the People's Store and is now located in the new Peckham building on Fourth street. Mr. Turrentine, the proprietor, is much pleased with his commodious quarters and the patronage already received leads him to have dreams of a department store in the near future. An attractive display of Christmas suggestions appears in one of the show windows.

John Ranson, who recently graduated from the senior class of nurses at the Sanatorium, received during the past week the Carnegie gold medal and $2000 for an act of bravery performed two years ago in Texas, when he rescued three men from suffocation in an oil well. Mr. Ranson left Texas soon after his heroic act and since then a continual search has been made to locate him, which only recently resulted successfully.

The regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will meet at the primary building of First M. E. church, Friday, November 18th. Respond to roll call, "One Thing to be Thankful For." Subject, "The Relation of Food to Intemperance." Mrs. Dr. Edwards of Washington, D. C., will have charge. A very interesting and instructive afternoon will be enjoyed by all who will attend. Everybody welcome. We hope for a room full. Good time to pay dues. Bring some one who is not a member.

The Glendale Investment company reports the following sales this week: Lot 14, block 3, Glendale boulevard tract on Central avenue from Marietta Parker to J. Lloyd Porter, who is already building a $2500 house. Two lots in the Pioneer tract to local parties. A house recently constructed by the Glendale House Building company to Mrs. Arthur L. Lewis of Los Angeles. Lot 2, block 62, on Brand boulevard near Fifth from Anton Hess to a party from Salt Lake.

Mr. Asa S. Fanset, who has been absent from his home on East Fourth street, Glendale, for the past six months visiting Dakota and the country north of the line, returned home Monday morning. Mr. Fanset states that either the Eastern climate is not what it used to be or else the quality of the California article is much superior. The first part of the Dakota summer was so cold as to make the use of overcoats necessary almost daily, and that was followed by excessive heat lasting several weeks. Altogether, he is glad to be home again.

On Friday night a reception was held in the Methodist Church in honor of the pastor and the new members, of which there are one hundred and four for the past year.

A splendid program was rendered, opening with a hymn by the congregation, followed by a prayer by Rev. Norton, a welcome to the pastor and new members by Oliver C. Clarke, a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. Lamb, a welcome from the charter members by Rev. Norton, a vocal solo by Mrs. Lamb, response from new members by Mr. Lamb, a vocal solo by Mrs. Bryant and a response by the pastor, and a vocal solo by Mr. Lamb concluding the program.

THE CHURCHES

ST. MARK'S EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Corner Fourth and Isabel. Divine services for Sunday, November 13, (25th Sunday after Trinity): Holy Communion 7:30 a. m. and morning prayer and sermon 11 a. m.; even song and sermon 7:30 p. m.; Sunday school in Parish house 9:45 a. m.; Bible class Friday evening in church 7:45 p. m.

Practical Christianity

Mrs. Anna W. Mills, recently of London, will speak at the Home of Truth, 432 W. Fourth St. on Sunday morning at 11 o'clock. Miss Suzanne Dean conducts the Wednesday evening meeting as usual. All interested are invited.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

At the morning service last Sunday the right hand of fellowship was extended to ten members. The church has begun the publication of a weekly calendar in which appear the announcements for the week and the stated appointment of the church. The Sunday school has been thoroughly organized by the new superintendent, Mr. C. C. Arrowsmith, and is putting on new life. Subject next Sunday morning, "The Best Temperance Text," a sermon for National Temperance Sunday. Evening, "The Tragedy of a Choice."

CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

On account of moving away Mrs. Wm. Kirby was obliged to resign as secretary of St. Mark's Guild. Mrs. Grosvenor of 1431 Hawthorne street, was appointed to succeed her.

The meetings at the Central Christian church are continuing with splendid interest. Mr. Darsie is a most entertaining and forcible speaker.

The services on Sunday evening will be of special interest to the young people.

Mr. Darsie will speak Sunday at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m., and every evening of the coming week except Saturday. All are most cordially invited to these services.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The World's Temperance Sunday will be observed by a special program in the Sunday school and at the morning service by an address on the "Present World's Status." At the evening service the pastor will deliver the third of his addresses on the short stories of Jesus.

The church reception will take place Friday afternoon and evening of this week. It is given by the ladies of the church to the new members and to all newly arrived members of the congregation. It will be held at the residence of Mrs. E. T. Byram, 218 Glendale avenue, from 2:30 to 5:00 p. m. and from 7:30 to 10:00 o'clock during the evening.

Miss Elsie Campbell and Miss Abbie Ward are representing the Presbyterian Sunday school of Glendale at the Sunday school convention at Santa [illegible] week.

TROPICO

Misses Florence and Anna Reynolds were guests of their cousin, Mrs. W. Querin of Los Angeles, Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Seward of Moore avenue have purchased an 80-acre bee ranch at Del Mar, where they expect to move in early spring.

Mrs. William Harvey entertained the Tropico Bridge-Whist club at her home on Tropico avenue, Tuesday afternoon. The prize was won by Mrs. B. W. Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hough, accompanied by their two children, arrived in Tropico last Saturday after a visit of several months in the East with friends and relatives.

Miss Mable Hagan of Whittier, is passing some time with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hutt of Blanche avenue. It is a possibility that Miss Hagan will remain in this place permanently.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Pratt and daughter, Miss Lola, returned to their home on Glendale avenue recently. Their trip, which took them through Colorado, Illinois and other states, covered about three months.

The home being erected by John Kirkham on Central avenue just south of Palmer will cost at least $2500 to erect instead of $1500 as reported in our last issue. When completed this home will be sold.

The real estate office belonging to Davenport & Black has been moved from the northeast corner of Tropico avenue and Brand boulevard to the southeast corner of the same crossing onto the land owned by Mrs. Bancroft.

Kenneth Wilbur, who has been in the hills around Santa Bernardino for the past several months with a surveying party, is expected to arrive at his home at this place within a few days for a short visit.

Rev. Sheldon and wife, who have been occupying the Pratt home on Glendale avenue for the past three months, have returned to their home in Los Angeles. Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon were former residents of Tropico and are quite well known here.

Misses Maude and Nannie McManis of Los Angeles, passed last Sunday with Rev. and Mrs. Botkin. The young ladies were formerly members of the church of which Rev. Botkin was pastor at Realto, and this year both entered U. S. C.

The work of trimming trees at this place continues. All of the large pepper trees along Central avenue from the junction of that street and the San Fernando road to Tenth street have been trimmed. Trees before other private residences have been trimmed and the places otherwise beautified.

A pleasant affair held at Verdugo Park recently was the picnic given complimentary to Mrs. C. L. Peckham and Miss Josephine Phelps of Evanston, Ill. Besides the guests of honor those enjoying the affair were Mrs. Erastus Nichols and Mrs. Schuyler Brown of Los Angeles; Mrs. Chas. Kinne and three children, Mrs. Edward Weston, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Chandler, Misses Gladys and Frances Peckham, A. L. Chandler.

Miss Josephine Phelps of Evanston, Ill., who is passing some time with friends at this place, was guest of honor at the Five Hundred party given by Mrs. William Harvey, jr., at her home on Tropico avenue Tuesday evening. The home was tastily decorated with flowers and greenery for the occasion. Among the guests present besides the guest of honor were Mrs. C. L. Peckham, Mrs. E. B. Ellias, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Seaman, Mr. and Mrs. H. Clay Seaman, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Merrill, Miss Treva Merrill, Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Weston.

TROPICO CHILD BREAKS LEG.

Little Carlton, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Scofield of Glendale avenue, broke his right leg by falling from the buggy, Monday morning, the accident occurring while the vehicle was standing before the Scofield home.

It was not known that any bones were broken, but the sufferer was in such pain that he was taken to Dr. Tholen, who informed them that the leg was broken between the knee and the hip joint. The child was taken to its home and Tuesday the leg was set. At last reports the little fellow was getting along as well as could be expected.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

Mrs. J. H. Webster, Mrs. Earnest J. Morgan and Mrs. Edward M. Lynch entertained the club November 3 at the home of the latter. The talk given by Mr. A. C. Dodd on juvenile delinquency was very instructive as well as enjoyable. Miss Katherine Hobbs pleased her audience immensely with a piano solo.

There will be a mass meeting November 14 at the home of Mrs. Turck on Glendale avenue to discuss the building of a clubhouse. All club members and their husbands, as well as any who may be interested, are invited. The library reception held November 5 in the new library quarters proved a great success.

Dramatic Club to Give Play

"The Girl from Barton's Ranch," a drama in three acts written by Frank Dumont, will be presented by the Tropico Dramatic Club in the G. A. R. hall on the evenings of Novembar 16th and 17th. The scenery is being painted especially for this production and promises to be of the finest order. Many rehearsals are being held, and the club assures the public that this will be the finest thing of its kind which it has ever put on. The club has been requested to put the show on in Glendale and will probably do so in the very near future.

DOINGS BY TROPICO METHODISTS.

Last Sunday was a banner day in this church and Sunday school. The attendance at the school was about double of that at the same time last year. In the caurch service twenty-one new members were received. The church in all its branches is in an unusually fine condition.

Begining with next Sunday evening the pastor will begin a series of three sermons on "Pathways to Success." The dates and names of the sermons are set as follows: November 13, "What's in a Name." November 20, "Round Boys in Square Holes." November 27, "Choosing a Career." The sermons will be of special interest to the young people of the town and everyone is invited to attend.

An all-day meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held in the church Tuesday.

The W. F. M. S. will meet at the home of Mrs. J. H. Hunt on Blanche avenue next Tuesday.

NUMEROUS SALES AT TROPICO

Up to October 29 the sales in the Richardson Tract, Tropico, amounted to forty in number, and aggregated over $36,000. The Lawrence B. Burck Company reports that the tract has met with instant success, and the percentage of sales to people who have seen it has been higher than in any tract ever before handled.

This subdivision is part of the Santa Eulalia Ranch, which extends from the eastern boundary of Elysian and Griffith Park to Tropico.

The Pacific Glendale line has brought this entire property into close and intimate touch with the city.

It is only a question of time before this district will develop into one of the most beautiful of all the suburbs surrounding Los Angeles.

The history of the ranch, which comprises some seven hundred acres lying inside the city limits, excepting some sixty acres, is indicative of the growth of Los Angeles. It was bought forty years ago by the elder Richardson for $3 an acre, a big price in those days. Just recently, the surviving heirs refused an offer of $2,000 an acre.

A large portion of the ranch is given over to vegetable and berry cultivation.

Eventually the greater part of the ranch will be divided into highly restricted villa sites.

THE ELECTION AT TROPICO.

There was unusual interest manifest at the election at Tropico this year. From the sound of the gong at 6 o'clock in the morning there was something doing every minute, a majority of the rush being caused in the early hours by the men who live here and are employed in Los Angeles. For an hour or so after the polls opened every booth was engaged. During the day the firing was not quite so heavy, but at no time was there that unbearable "lull." Another grand rush came between the hours of 5 and 6 in the evening.

An unusual feature at this election was the presence of ladies at the polls, electioneering. They were not handing out cards of any particular candidate, however; but were simply entreating the voters to eliminate from this beautiful town the places which would lead to the degrading and lowering of the standards of our community. These women were fighting the wholesale and retail liquor clause, the winery clause, the restaurant license clause and measure relating to the allowing of pool rooms.

Although a number of ladies were asked to assist in pleading with the voters in chosing these clean measures, there were but three who responded. One who would have helped was detained at home on account of a recent accident to her boy. One lady who was working in the interest of her several boys, remained at the polls from the opening hour in the morning until after 5 o'clock at night, with a short time for lunch at noon. One lady, who works in Los Angeles, remained about an hour in the morning and another staid for an hour in the afternoon.

WEST GLENDALE

Mr. and Mrs. Gervais of Ivy street had a visit from their son and family who drove up from Anaheim in their auto Sunday.

Mrs. Miner entertained the following friends at her home on Ivy street on Tuesday, Mrs. Schurz and Mrs. C. T. Smith of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. Hyatt, West Fourth street, are entertaining their son and family, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson and daughter, also their daughter, Mrs. Vance and little son of San Francisco, who arrived in Glendale Tuesday.

The new M. E. church is making rapid strides toward completion, being plastered, and having the electric lights installed. Nothing preventing, the dedication will take place either the 11th or 18th of December. Several ministers including Dr. Locke, will take part in the ceremonies of which a full account will be given in the NEWS at a later date.

Several boys from the West Glendale school took advantage of the holiday on Tuesday and made the ascent of Mt. Verdugo. The time taken in "going up," was one hour, but from the numerous scratches and bruises and from the generous samples of soil from the mountain side, the descent was made in a much shorter time. A substantial lunch and water was taken along, coffee made over the camp fire, their names enrolled on the register, and altogether they had a jolly time. Those who took the tramp were Howard Bradley, Irving Everett, Guy Pixley, Edmund Moffett, Howard Elliott.

"DIME SOCIAL."

Don't forget the "dime social" this (Friday) evening at the home of Mrs. Metcalf, 1520 Oak street, for the benefit of the new M. E. church. Everybody cordially invited. Remember, it is only one dime, but don't be bashful and stay away on account of having more than "one lonely ten-cent piece," but bring all you can. You will be just as welcome and be assured of having a delightful evening.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Saturday Verdugo met and defeated the U. S. C. Dental College by a score of 20 to 1. Leo Goode pitched five innings of very good ball.

On Sunday Verdugo defeated the Blinn Lumber Company, 15 to 3.

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

New pupils are Willis Rhodes, ninth year; Katherine Lewis, Polytechnic High, ninth year; Clarence Verry, Santa Ana, ninth year; Ina Verry, Santa Ana, twelfth year; Vera McPherson, Hammond, Ind., tenth year.

Miss Mabel Evans has returned from her Eastern trip and has resumed her work in the commercial department.

Monday afternoon a regular election was held by the students of the school. The officers appointed were Dwight Stevenson, Hazel Everts, Jens Askeland, Evelyn Ryan and Sidney Parratt.

The ballot boxes were placed on the stage and the dressing rooms were used as booths for the preparation of the ballots.

Votes were cast for Governor, Lieutenant-Governor and District Attorney. There was a total of one hundred and eighty-five votes cast. Johnson received 84, Bell 69, Wilson 32. Fredericks won over Woolwine by a large majority.

The twelfth year class in civics is going to investigate reported election frauds and will summon a grand jury from among its number to take evidence in the case and if any indictment is found a regular jury trial will be held for the accused.

Junior class has been very busy collecting material to be used in their number of the Stylus which will be issued in about two weeks.

The geometry classes and the bookkeeping classes have been having very satisfactory examinations.

The class in commercial geography is much interested in a line of research work dealing with material and statistics concerning products of Southern California and the West.

On Friday afternoon at 2:15 the music department will give the first of their complimentary programs for this year. The numbers will be varied as far as the composers are concerned, but will consist of solos, choruses, numbers by the mandolin club and the orchestra, all by members of the student body. Friends and patronesses of the school are cordially invited and will be made especially welcome.

MORE DOINGS BY "BROWNSBERGER."

One of the most notable social features scheduled for the month of November took place Thursday evening at the Goldberg-Bosley assembly rooms, the occasion being the first of the series of monthly receptions and balls to be given by the Brownsberger Commercial College.

SALT LAKE LOWERING TRACK.

The Salt Lake company has had a force of men at work for the past week lowering the track on Glendale avenue south of Sixth street. Improvement of this part of the avenue has just been completed and the Salt Lake company with commendable promptness went to work on the track as soon as Street Superintendent Lynch requested them to do so.

The majority of the young people attended the Harvest Home Dance held Saturday evening in the pavilion at Verdugo Park. Artistic and effective decorations were composed of bell peppers, cornstalks, pumpkins and flowering clematis.

Friend—Haven't you named the baby yet?

Proud Mother—No; we must be very careful to give him a nice one, because there will be so many named after him when he is president.

What Did He Mean?

Mrs. H.—I see there's a man in France who has murdered three of his wives in succession. I'd like to see the man who would murder me.

Mr. H.—So would I, my dear.

Base envy withers at another's joy and hates the excellence it cannot reach.—Thomson.

Why She Didn't.

New Employer—But why did you leave your last mistress? New Maid—Hivens! Did you expect me t' bring her along wid me?—Cleveland Leader.

Queer, but the man who doesn't need credit is the one who can most easily get it.—Portland Express.

ST. MARK'S GUILD.

One of the most successful meetings of the Guild was held Thursday afternoon, a full attendance of members being present and much work accomplished. Committees appointed for the bazaar, to be held the afternoons and evenings of December 6 and 7, reported on the progress of the work. In addition to the various booths already selected, a doll booth was added, and a fish pond, under a competent chairman, was also thought most feasible. Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Henry Ward and Mrs. Stoffel. The next meeting, November 10, will be an all-day gathering in order to accomplish more work. Hostesses will be Mrs. Fraley, Mrs. Croad and Mrs. Grosvenor.
